

It is sad that cable companies are so unwilling. We have a great relationship with our local cable company and have an open-access platform with them. We provide service to close to 500 customers over this cable network...that's over 40% of the cable company's total Internet customers.